

Enroll More Students

Reduce cycles, streamline processes, and create cost transparency

Almost half of low-income students accepted into college won't enroll because they get stuck in the financial aid process. They struggle with figuring out the difference between loans and grants, deciphering their financial aid offer letter, and making it through the verification process. With Ellucian's AI-powered products, the financial aid office streamlines these processes accelerating financial aid packages to help students visualize their financial path to a degree.
